DAC users have the option of automatically closing the day, (as well as the week, period and year if desired) when posting customer orders. Refer to Posting Orders of the Billing document for additional information.

DAC closing procedures should never be run without first verifying that no one will be using DAC at the time, with one exception. Those using Accounts Payable (A/P) and General Ledger (G/L) may continue using the system if no A/P and G/L files are saved during the closing process. Refer to Working With Closing Applications of the Accounts Payable document and the General Ledger document for information about the closing processes of A/P and G/L.

Refer to Appendix A for lists of the DAC programs which run and the database files which are affected when the DAC closing procedures are run.

Working With End of Day

The End Of Day (EOD) Processing application is run by the distributor after posting of the day's orders is complete. Refer to Posting Orders of the Billing document for additional information.

If EOD processing is ever run after midnight of the day on which invoice posting is done, DAC calendar records must be used. Refer to Working With Calendar Records of the System File Maintenance document for additional information.

The End Of Day application can also be used to close a week, period and year. If DAC calendar records are used, users must add the calendar records for an upcoming year before closing the current year. Refer to Adding Calendar Records of the System File Maintenance document for additional information.

Refer to the DAC Default System Options document for information about:

- Auto Run End Of Day field of the SYS033 (Billing Options).
- SYS011 (User Point: End of Day) default system option where user-specific functions can be designated to execute with end of day processing.

It is strongly recommended that those who use remote communications stop CVICOM before running end of day closing procedures. Refer to Working With Remote Communications of the Billing document for additional information.

Using End Of Day Processing

The instructions below include using the End Of Day Processing application to handle end of week, end of period and end of year processing with end of day (EOD) processing.

If DAC calendar records are used, users must add the calendar records for an upcoming year before closing the current year. Refer to Adding Calendar Records of the System File Maintenance document for additional information.

Users should contact CDR support personnel if the End Of Day Processing application is interrupted. Refer to Working With Closing Control Display below for an example of the Notification of Incomplete Function screen which appears when the end of day processing is interrupted.

Refer to Selecting End Of Day Reports for information about selecting the optional reports printed during EOD processing.

 END OF REPORT **

Working With End of Week

The End Of Week Processing application can also be used to close a period and year. If DAC calendar records, rather than the system's date, are used to designate closing dates, users must add the calendar records for an upcoming year before closing the current year. Refer to Adding Calendar Records of the System File Maintenance document for additional information.

Refer to the DAC Default System Options document for information about the SYS012 (User Point: End of Week) default system option where user-specific functions can be designated to execute with end of week processing.

Using End Of Week Processing

The instructions below describe using the End Of Week Processing application to handle end of period and end of year processing with end of week (EOW) processing.

If DAC calendar records are used, users must add the calendar records for an upcoming year before closing the current year. Refer to Adding Calendar Records of the System File Maintenance document for additional information.

Users should contact CDR support personnel if the End Of Week Processing application is interrupted.

Refer to Using End Of Day Processing for information about running end of week automatically after end of day.

 END OF REPORT **

Working With End of Year

If DAC calendar records, rather than the system's date, are used to designate closing dates, users must add the calendar records for an upcoming year before closing the current year. Refer to Adding Calendar Records of the System File Maintenance document for additional information.

Refer to the DAC Default System Options document for information about the SYS019 (User Point: End of Year) default system option where user-specific functions can be designated to execute with end of year processing.

Using End Of Year Processing

Users should contact CDR support personnel if the End Of Year Processing application is interrupted.

If DAC calendar records are used, users must add the calendar records for an upcoming year before closing the current year. Refer to Adding Calendar Records of the System File Maintenance document for additional information.

If DAC calendar records are not used and the user's fiscal year differs from the calendar year, verify that NO* is entered for the Calendar Year field of the SYS005 (Accounting Options) default system option. Refer to the DAC Default System Options document for additional information.

Refer to Working With Item Analysis Reports of the Item File Maintenance document for information about printing year-to-date reports before closing the current year.
